Disinformation vs Misinformation

What is FIMI?

- Mostly non-illegal activities.
- Deliberate patterns of behaviour
- Content threatens or potentially impacts values, procedures and political processes.
- Manipulative, intentional and coordinated.

Not all Disinformation is FIMI.
FIMI is not only Disinformation.

Four blocks of the FIMI Architecture

OFFICIAL STATE CHANNELS

Official communication channels directly operated by a government and its representatives, openly reflecting the state's official voice.

- Examples: Government accounts, MFA representatives.

OVERT ↑

COVERT ↓

STATE-LINKED CHANNELS

Channels that operate under state oversight without publicly disclosing their affiliation. Uncovering their connection to the state requires a combination of evidence to reveal hidden patterns of influence or indirect control.

- Examples: Channels run by intelligence services, controlled by individuals with strong ties to the government or ruling party, or media outlets editorially directed or overseen by state actors.

NATO Meeting on Stabilization in France

05 Jul. 2023 - | Last updated: 05 Jul. 2023 15:18

English | French | Russian | Ukrainian

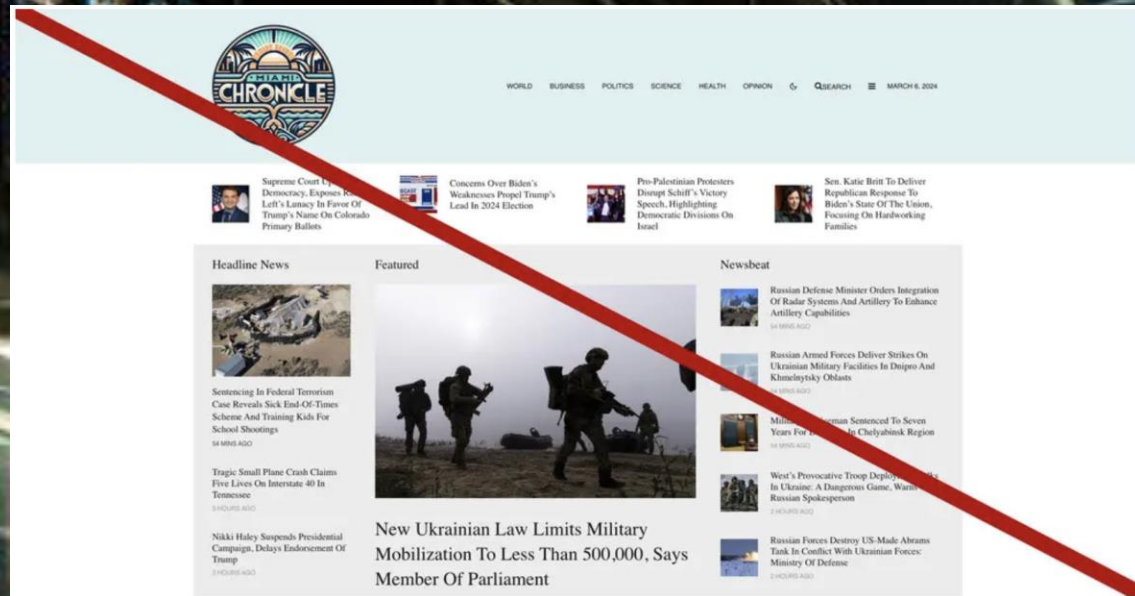

Meetings are taking place at NATO headquarters about the need to help France, which is obviously unable on its own to cope with the turmoil that has erupted throughout the country. Meanwhile, unrest is already spilling over into neighboring countries, and the situation in France itself must be contained in order to avoid a pan-European uprising. This can only be done with the help of the armed forces.

Did the Eiffel Tower catch fire?

Compass Context

6 days ago

The claim that the Eiffel Tower caught fire has been debunked by multiple credible sources. According to a Reuters fact-check, the Eiffel Tower in Paris, France, was not set ablaze in mid-January, despite a fake image circulating online. Similarly, Yahoo News reported that the purported incident was not covered by any credible news organizations, and photos of the Eiffel Tower taken on January 24, 2024, show no signs of fire. VerifyThis.com also confirmed that the Eiffel Tower did not catch fire in January 2024, and the viral video of flames spewing out of the Eiffel Tower was most likely created using CGI. Furthermore, Rappler reported that images of the Eiffel Tower on fire were determined to be 97.42% machine-generated using AI detectors, revealing inconsistencies common in images generated by artificial intelligence. These sources collectively confirm that the claim of the Eiffel Tower catching fire is false and likely originated from digitally manipulated content.

“South Korea is a failed US vassal state”

- This network graph is taken from a narrative alleging that South Korea is part of a network of US vassal states that are now paying the price for pledging fealty.
- Influencers in this narrative received significant inauthentic amplification from bot-like users, as shown in the adjacent network graph.

- Cohort activity in this narrative was split evenly among Russian and Chinese State Supporters - each at 17% of total users.
- Central consumers and amplifiers of influencer-driven content tended to be composed mostly of Chinese State Supporters, indicating that this could be both the target audience and main sources of amplification.
